

Renato Stanić

Game and App Developer

Profile

I am a developer with over 5 years of official experience with software development, and 3 years of game development. Most recent work of mine is the Android app for Croatia's largest classified ad website called Njuskalo, which I have worked on for more than 3 years.

My latest success is developing a photo recognition feature that recognizes objects on the photos, where AI analyses the photo and matches them with their belonging categories. If the AI has chosen the wrong category, the user can easily improve the AI by presenting the correct category while making the AI better and smarter.

I have experience working alone and in teams, I know how to communicate with any members of a development team. I have used a wide range of version control and ticket tracking software, and therefore I know how to structure goals to meet deadlines.

I am consistent and very effective when it comes to my work, and I have the necessary skills for the job.
